Both Glad and Sad to Be First

Dovid Kopel

There are times when my great Rebbe, HaRav Nochum Lansky שליט״א, would say a big חידוש (novel insight) and could not find anyone else who said it — and it would bother him. "How come no one says it?" At times he felt happy to be the first, but at the same time he was doubting himself. With so many great sages before us, no one thought of this concept before?!

Then, the next day, he would often find that someone had said it, or something in a similar vein. He would be somewhat glad and somewhat sad. We all want to say the big חידושים, but hopefully we are humble enough to recognize the great wealth of תורה upon which we stand.

May we all be זוכה to get to the place where we can say צ״ע like Rebbe Akiva Eiger!
